

Curriculum vitae di Neri Niccolai

August 8, 1947, born in Florence, Italy. Maturità Classica (1966) and Laurea in Chemistry (1971). 1977-1979 Research Associate, Department of Biochemistry-University of Wisconsin (USA). 1985-1986 Visiting Professor, Department of Pharmaceutical Chemistry-School of Pharmacy of the University of London (UK).

Since September 2000 is full professor of Biochemistry at the University of Siena, Italy. Coordinator of the Structural Biology laboratory of the Biotechnology, Chemistry and Pharmacy Department. Teaching duties: Biological Chemistry and Protein Chemistry for chemists.

Research activities: development of new NMR and computational approaches for structural investigations of biomolecules; author of more than hundred papers on qualified international journals; invited speaker at national and international Conferences; organizer of national and international Conferences and advanced schools; editor and author of books; author of multimedial reports of protein structures and activity; extensive international cooperation.